SECRETARY OF DEFENSE James V. Forrestal and the heads of the armed services are shown as they appear before Congress to back a program "to avert war" by adding 349,000 officers and men to the three departments. The group outlined to the Armed Services Committee in Washington their plan for a "balanced strength in manpower"—on the ground, sea and in the air. Seated (l. to r.): Forrestal; Kenneth Royall, of the Army; John L. Sullivan, of the Navy; and W. Stuart Symington, of the Air Force. Standing (l. to r.) are: Gen. Carl Spaatz, Air Force chief of staff; Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army chief of staff, and Adm. Lewis E. Denfeld, chief of naval operations. The proposed program would call for an added appropriation of $3,000,000,000.

Uncle Sam, John L. Lewis May Tangle In Court Tilt

WASHINGTON, March 27—A court battle between the government and John L. Lewis threatened today to occur ahead of schedule.

The fight may come not on an injunction to end the two-week-old strike of 400,000 coal miners as originally expected but on the issue of whether Lewis will testify before a presidential fact-finding board.

Federal Circuit Judge Sherman Minton, chairman of the board, said today that the Congress Seen Giving Military 'Own Ticket'

WASHINGTON, March 27—Sen. Edwin Johnson, (D) Colo., predicted today that Congress will let the armed services "write their own ticket" on renewing selective service and getting new weapons against the threat of expanding world Communism.

There were other indications, however, that legislators will insist on revamping the military leaders' "ticket" by insisting on more emphasis on air power than Defense Secretary Forrestal recommended.

Sen. Knowland, (R) Cal., an appropriations committee member, said that group will go into the aircraft question. Throwing his weight behind the demand of Sen. Lodge, (R) Mass., for a 70-group Air Force, Knowland declared that "Congress has the responsibility of going into this matter, keeping in mind the necessity of maintaining a balanced defense establishment."

Meanwhile, Senate Armed Services Chairman Gurney, (R) S. D., said he expected the military men to submit legislation next week calling for the draft of 220,000 men, 19 to 25 years old, during the next year.

New 'Bold Look' For Men To Show Up Easter Sunday

NEW YORK, March 27—Ladies, there is now a simple way to tell a man from a mouse. The one in the necktie printed with inch-wide polka dots is a man.

This necktie is part of the Bold Look that the well-dressed man will wear tomorrow—Easter Sunday.

mine shutdown, has given the UMW president until 10 a. m. Monday to decide whether he will attend a board session at 2:30 that afternoon.

Lewis declined to appear before the fact-finders at their initial session and, if he maintains this position, Minton said a subpoena would be issued for his appearance. The jurist added:

"IF LEWIS disobeys the subpoena, we can get a U. S. district court order. If he disobeys that, he'll be in contempt of court."

President Truman created the board of inquiry last Tuesday under the Taft-Hartley law and directed it to report to him "on or before April 5" on the pension dispute between Lewis and soft coal operators.

Mr. Truman has indicated that after the board reports the government will seek an 80-day court injunction against continuance of the walkout.

Interior Secretary Krug said steel mills, railroads and public utilities will be forced to drastically curtail operations if the strike continues for another 15 days.

Krug appealed to coal companies still producing to give top priority to orders from hospitals.

Million More Gallons Water Daily Due City

Circleville this year may have an additional one million gallons of water per day if plans now being drawn-up by Burgess and Niple, a Columbus engineering firm, are approved by the city's water department.

Ervin Leist, manager of the water department, said if there are no holdbacks, it is possible the new infiltration gallery may be put into operation as early as Fall.

He described the gallery as a horizontal well constructed of reinforced concrete tile. In substance, the tile will look like large water mains and will have open connections to permit the underground water supply to seep through.

Once the water has flowed into the gallery, water pumps will carry it into storage tanks. Leist said the new equipment will be an extension of the present water system at the pumping station west of Circleville. The present system provides about 650,000 gallons of water per day, the water manager disclosed.

Guards Alerted

ROME, March 27—Sentries guarding the vast munitions dumps in Northern Italy were ordered today to shoot night marauders on sight. The drastic order was said to stem from indications that the recent arms factory explosion at Arcisate was the result of sabotage.

BANGKOK, March 27—Thailand police announced today discovery of a large-scale plot by Chinese elements to seize power in Thailand. The announcement said the revolutionaries had two well-trained Chinese regiments.

Aid Bill Opposition Said Crumbling

GOP Chief Says 'Less Than 80' Votes Expected Against Plan

WASHINGTON, March 27—Rep. Eaton, (R) N. J., foreign affairs committee chairman, declared today that opposition to the foreign recovery program is "crumbling" and predicted passage by the House, probably Tuesday, by an overwhelming 5 to 1 vote.

The Republican leader declared: "I wouldn't be surprised if there were less than 80 votes cast against the bill."

Eaton anticipated that "perhaps 50" amendments would be offered when voting begins Monday, but indicated he expected no major change in the bill from the floor. The House leadership is pressing for final passage by nightfall Tuesday.

The GOP chieftain predicted also:

1. The $6.25 billion bill, including aid for Western Europe, China, Greece and Turkey, will be enacted into law instead of the Senate measure, which was confined to the European Recovery Program.

2. The amendment of Rep. Colmer, (D) Miss., to break off economic relations with Russia, will be defeated.

3. Congress will speed the legislation to the White House well in advance of the crucial April 18 elections in Italy, where the Communists are making their next bid for power in Europe.

The Senate, in anticipation of the early passage of the "one package" bill, is rushing through separate legislation covering the additional programs for Greece, Turkey and China included in the House measure.

A conference committee of the two houses will iron out the final bill after the House has passed its measure.

ed its measure. Speedy agreement was anticipated. Eaton declared that Colmer's amendment received little support when it was offered in committee and he indicated he anticipated it would meet a similar fate in the House. Colmer said he planned to offer the amendment because "we're following now the same pattern as before the last war when we shipped oil and scrap iron to Japan."

Tax Slash Veto Seen

Truman Expected To Oppose Cuts

WASHINGTON, March 27—Administration sources said today that President Truman probably will send the tax reduction bill back to Congress next Wednesday or Thursday with a sharp veto message.

Democratic leaders explained that the President undoubtedly would wait until the House has disposed of the European Recovery Program bill before returning the four billion, 773 million dollar tax cut.

The House is expected to finish with the ERP bill Tuesday, although a snarl may develop which will delay final action until Wednesday. There is little likelihood that the President would muddy the waters with a tax veto until this important legislation is out of the way.

Informed forecasts are that the President will stress the in-

Scioto May Be Ready For Yearly Spring Flood

Highway engineers and farmers alike Saturday were watching the Scioto river and its tributaries as damaging Spring floods appeared probable.

Charles Carter, local weather and river observer, said Saturday the Scioto was up to 13.1 feet about 8 a. m. and was rising rapidly.

"Our report this morning from Columbus said the river there was up a foot," Carter reported. "And a foot rise there means three feet here."

He said that in all probability, the Scioto would hit the 18-foot mark by Sunday morning.

ALREADY, muddy waters are seeping into the Smith bottomlands west of the city. It takes only 17½ feet to inundate Mill road and Route 56 west of Circleville, Carter reported.

What are the chances of the river topping 20 feet? Carter said they were good, provided there was more rain either here or in the north.

A 20-foot flood stage would close several other roads in Pickaway County, Carter reported. It is possible that a 20-foot stage would block Route 104 on the south and at Dewey Park west of the city, he declared.

Ohio river observers at Cincinnati predicted that the river will reach flood stage Sunday. Thunderstorms and torrential rains Friday caused the river to rise eight feet in a 24-hour period.

At 8 a. m. Saturday, it had reached 46.6 feet, and a 50-foot reading was predicted. Flood stage is 52 feet.

The Little Miami river, a principal tributary in the Cincinnati area, already is out of its banks and has flooded Route 50 near Cleves. Other streams also were reported near flood stage.

Gunfire Heard During Rites

JERUSALEM, March 27—Jerusalem's Christians observed sacred pre-Easter ceremonies today, while intermittent machine-gun fire was heard on the outskirts of the holy city.

Within Jerusalem, itself, the sanctity of Easter was undisturbed, as Jews and Arabs continued to honor the tacit truce.

British Archbishop Arthur W. Hughes, papal uncio in the Middle East, officiated at the Blessing of the Holy Fire in the Basilica of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

Sleepy Autoist Allowed Nap After Accident

"As soon as the defendant wakes up, we are going to have a hearing for him." That was State Patrolman L. G. Ridenour's Saturday announcement regarding the disposition of the case against a sleepy Columbus autoist.

The autoist, Earl Dabney, 25, who told the patrolman he had had no sleep for 48 hours, was involved in a head-on crash about 9 p. m. Friday, six miles north of Circleville on Route 23.

Dabney's car crashed into one driven by William Deckard, 42, of Portsmouth. Miss Ruby Casno, 22, also of Portsmouth, was treated in Berger hospital for head injuries and lacerations.

The patrolman said Dabney was arrested for reckless operation and was lodged in jail here. When it came time for a preliminary hearing, Dabney again was asleep. He could not be awakened. The law decided to wait until Morpheus relaxed his grip on Dabney.

Indiana Counts 20 Fatalities

11 Die In One Town Of 500

CHICAGO, March 27—The death toll rose to 24 today in a series of destructive tornadoes that struck in five states.

Communities and towns were flattened by heavy storms in Indiana, Alabama, Illinois, Missouri and Louisiana yesterday and last night.

The small communities of Roanoke and Piedmont, Ala., were struck by tornadoes this morning. Both towns were cut off from outside communication. The number of persons injured or the extent of property damage could not be determined immediately.

The west central section of Indiana was the hardest hit. Indiana counted at least 20 known dead this morning as state police and other rescue workers combed the wreckage of flattened buildings.

The American Red Cross reported that the heaviest loss of life occurred at Coatesville, Ind., where the bodies of 11 persons have been found and identified. Two others were killed by the storm at Coatesville, state police announced, but have not been identified.

THREE PERSONS were killed in Aliceville, Ala., and 43 injured, five critically.

In addition, a heavy hailstorm battered Montgomery, Ala., last night, breaking windows.

Soviets Plan Razing Castles

FRANKFURT, Germany, March 27—The Soviet military administration has ordered the immediate destruction of 1,800 historic castles and mansions in Saxony to give the countryside a "new look" more in keeping with Communist philosophy.

The administration, which is carrying out this program to remove the vestiges of aristocracy in Eastern Germany, announced officially that the buildings, some of which date back to the 15th century, are being razed to furnish materials for 500 new cottages.

The Soviets said these cottages are to house the refugee farmers who shared in the land reform program.

In the face of public protests, Communist Minister of the Interior for Saxony Paul Fischer has issued a statement saying that the implementation of the Soviet order is a "political necessity." He added:

"No former manor houses should disfigure the landscape. The new cottages of refugee farmers will give it a new and different look."

Easter Hat All He Wanted

CHICAGO, March 27—A thief, more interested in his Easter finery than in the jewelry within his grasp, stole a new hat today from Harry Wolf's store in Chicago's loop.

Within his reach but left untouched were uncut gems.

A LOT OF LITTLE STINKERS

The average age of law-breakers in Ohio is 20. Col. O. H. Cornwell, superintendent of the Ohio state bureau of criminal identification and investigation, told a meeting of the Pickaway County Auxiliary Deputy Sheriffs' Association Friday night in Betz restaurant.

In his talk of the functions of the bureau, located at the London prison farm, Col. Cornwell said the Ohio average is three years higher than the national average of 17, reported by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Speaking on the value of fingerprinting, the bureau head told some 30 deputies in attendance that the Ohio law forbids his office to fingerprint on criminal cards any youth under 18 years of age.

He commented: "Although Father Flannigan at Boys' Town says there are no bad boys, we know some of these kids are a lot of little stinkers."

Col. Cornwell said the main function of his office is to assist all law enforcement agencies in Ohio. Whatever work is done by the bureau is in conjunction with agency that reported the crime.

One disadvantage at London, Col. Cornwell declared, is the downs and shattering advertising signs.

Weather officials said a rapid fall in the temperature in the midwest last night was caused by a cold front which moved in from the north.

It struck warm air prevailing in the area and set off tornadoes which battered Grafton, Ill., 30 miles north of St. Louis and then hit Terre Haute, Ind. moving on to Coatesville, village of about 500.

Rescue workers probed the Coatesville ruins under lantern light in an effort to find possible victims who might either be dead or trapped in the debris.

Witnesses said the tornado struck suddenly and leveled 30 houses in a row on one Coatesville street as it roared through "like an express train."

RED CROSS workers were rushed into the devastated area and set up canteens to care for the injured and homeless.

State police said only a few buildings were left standing in Coatesville. They said virtually all had been damaged beyond occupancy by the twister, which wreaked its havoc in four minutes.

One of the heroes in the Coatesville storm was Elbert Summers, 25.

Summers said he heard a westbound Pennsylvania railroad freight train roaring down the track which was blocked by debris from the tornado.

He raced down the tracks with a lantern and flagged the train down before it reached the blocked portion of the line.

Mrs. Opal Pincher, 29, said she and her 11-year-old daughter, Shirley, were picked up by the wind and blown 40 feet into the garden of the First Methodist church parsonage.

A brief twister earlier had whipped Smart Field, a small naval base, north of St. Charles, Mo., and destroyed the administration building and a plane hangar before leap-frogging across the Mississippi river to the Alton-Jerseyville area in Illinois.

Several homes were destroyed, others damaged and communications ripped out as the storm swept through the Illinois sections.

Jurist Dismisses Suit On Crypts

In a suit purporting concealment of assets from the Emma C. Bartholomew estate in Pickaway County probate court, Ansel W. Kirkpatrick of New Holland was found innocent and the case dismissed by Judge Sterling M. Lamb.

Don C. Bartholomew, administrator, claimed in his petition Kirkpatrick had failed to report the sale of 13 crypts of a 37 crypt mausoleum in New Holland.

The defendant was half owner of the mausoleum and the Bartholomew estate owner of the remaining half. In the petition, the estate administrator admitted Kirkpatrick had accounted for the sale of 24 sections.

Judge Lamb stated in his finding that if any action was warranted, Bartholomew should have filed an action for accounting or an action for money rather than a suit for concealment of assets.

Columbus Bans Sabbath Sales

COLUMBUS, March 27—Columbus Police Chief Charles M. Berry ordered a crackdown today against automobile dealers remaining open on Sunday.

Berry called attention to an ordinance making it illegal for auto salesrooms or lots to remain open on the Sabbath.

The chief said a complaint was lodged by a dealer who claimed "unfair competition" after his own establishment was ordered closed by a police cruiser last week.

SOFT COAL operators testified for nearly two hours before the panel yesterday but Lewis informed the board that he could not attend "because definitive study is being given to the legal questions involved."

Other witnesses summoned for Monday were William Burke, secretary of the miners welfare fund, and Thomas E. Murray, New York industrialist and former neutral trustee of the $32,000,000 fund.

Murray resigned when he was unable to break the deadlock between the other trustees, Lewis for the union and Ezra Van Horn for the operators.

Effort Renewed To End Strike

CHICAGO, March 27 — The U. S. mediation and conciliation service renewed its efforts today to settle the nationwide meat packing strike now in its 12th day.

James J. Spillane, mediation regional director, said that representatives of the "big four" packers and the striking CIO United Packinghouse Workers have been invited to a meeting in Chicago next Tuesday or Wednesday in an effort to settle the wage dispute.

The new move toward reopening negotiations came as President Truman's board of inquiry investigating the strike was given another week in which to study the vast amount of data in the strike.

On another strike front, the Omaha Livestock Exchange appealed to President Truman to intervene in the strike.

Thugs May Net Dollar A Pound

CHICAGO, March 27 — Four masked bandits who tied up a watchman and carted away a 1,000-pound safe from the P. D. Carroll Trucking Co., probably will get about a dollar a pound for their efforts.

Company officials said they thought the safe contained about $1,000 but they weren't sure.

The victim who was trussed up is Adolph Mueller of suburban Palos Heights. He said the bandits loaded the safe on a two-wheel cart and hauled it away in a pickup truck.

Contractor Asks $2,067 For Darby Township Job

A $2,067.53 action for money has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Frank W. Puckett in an effort to force Jane Lewis of Darby Township to pay him for "labor and materials used in construction, alteration and improvement" of her property.

Puckett's action was carried in pursuance of an oral contract and agreement for the payment of work between Oct. 1940 and April 1947, the petition states.

In his second cause of action, Puckett's petition states that in June 1947, within 60 days of date of last labor performed and materials furnished, he filed an affidavit with the recorder stating he had carried out his part of the contract.

Because of this, the record states, Puckett claims alien on the defendant's real estate to the amount of $2,067.53, the amount he claims is owed.

The contractor's petition states no part of the debt has been paid. He now wants his back pay plus six percent interest beginning April 12, 1947.

'Green Rain' Mystery Solved

DAYTON, March 27—The "green rain" which fell on a section of Dayton yesterday was credited today to a trash pile heaped high with cans labeled "U. S. government sea marking."

The rain was described as "about the color of lime soda pop" when it fell over a block-square area on Dayton's east side.

Officials explained today that a Dayton man had been purchasing government surplus liferafts, stripping and re-selling them. He discarded the cans on the trash pile with no idea they would cause the "green rain."

Scientists explained that the heavy downpour of rain scattered and dissolved small quantities of the powder, used to mark water so it can be seen easily from the air.

Numbers Take Part Of Estate

COLUMBUS, March 27 — The second district appellate court upheld today a probate court decision that the widow of Lester Digbie is responsible to his estate for $40,000 he allegedly won "playing the numbers."

Probate Judge C. P. McClellan made the original finding against the widow, Mrs. Maye Digbie Wallace, who is held to have found the money buried in a fishing tackle box.

A district court also found Mrs. Wallace accountable but ruled an error due to a visit Judge McClellan paid to the premises where the money supposedly was buried.

The appellate decision, in upholding the probate judge, says he visited the scene in order to "more intelligently construe" testimony in the case.

Sealers Back On Land Safely

HALIFAX, March 27—The Canadian ice-breaker "Saurel" headed for the Cape Breton coast today with 38 seal hunters rescued when their ships were smashed by ice packs.

The men walked gingerly across ice floes in the frozen Atlantic waters north of Newfoundland to reach the safety of St. Paul's island, in the gulf of St. Lawrence.

The "Teaser," carrying 5,000 seals, was crushed by ice Thursday, Captain Joseph Barry of Hilton, Mass., led his 21-man crew across the ice pack after hours of dangerous walking in a blinding snowstorm.

The second ship, the "Monica Waters," was abandoned yesterday. Its crew of 17 had to walk across three and a half miles of ice floes to reach the island lighthouse.

The "Saurel," making at times only a mile an hour as it bucked the ice jam, expects to reach North Sydney, just 20 miles away on the Cape Breton coast, sometime today.

Bold Look For Men Due Easter

Any ex-GI ought to feel at home in 'em.

Well, if the old man still doesn't look like the kind of guy who won't take "no" for an answer, maybe the Bold Look hat will fix him up with a personality as aggressive as a huckster.

This hat, and it apparently is a very daring innovation in gents ready-to-wear, is a snap brim number in rich cinnamon brown with a black band.

What gives it the daring Bold Look is the binding of gun-metal grey.

This binding is barely visible on top of the brim. But underneath! Wow! It's five-eighths of an inch wide on the under part of that snap brim. Zowie!

All of these subtle touches, worn with the same tired old blue serge or beat-up double-breasted gray flannel suit, are supposed to combine into a look "as virile as football, as masculine as the Marine Corps, as American as the Sunday comics."

Even gents' jewelry has the Bold Look this Spring. And if Buster still bears no living resemblance to Richard the Lion-Hearted, maybe a "wide slab of gold" in the form of a tie clip or big, heavy gold cuff links will help. Vitamins might be cheaper.

Heavy gold link chains will be worn on keys, too, out of deference to the Bold Look.

The plaids in sports jackets are going to be so big and bold this season that it will take two men and a boy to wear a single pattern.

If all of these accessories fail to give old faithful a Bold Look, ladies, there is still one thing left: A blood transfusion.

15 1/2-Cent Wage Boost Urged For Railroaders

WASHINGTON, March 27—A presidential emergency board today recommended a general wage increase of 15 and one-half cents an hour, retroactive to Nov. 1, 1947, for locomotive engineers, firemen and switchmen on most of the nation's railroads.

The recommendation was made to President Truman after an investigation of a threatened nationwide rail strike.

The board's findings affect some 150,000 workers and practically all Class One railroads in the nation.

The three railroad brotherhoods had asked for a 30 percent increase in wages with a minimum raise of $3 a day.

The board granted the 15 and a half cents an hour increase on a basis of previous wage increases for all other railroad employees.

ETERNAL LIFE (Easter Lesson)

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 28 is John 21:1-14; Colossians 3:1-4, 12-17; 1 John 5:11, 12.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

IN THESE troubled times, when the Soviet Union is extending its rule over more and more formerly free nations, using suppressive measures to all who do not submit to its ideology, we are reminded again and again of the time of Jesus, when to confess to being a Christian was to invite persecution.

In the Holy Land, too, where the Lord lived, died and rose again, at this Easter time there is bitterness and strife, as the Jewish people battle for a homeland in the country that once was theirs.

After His resurrection Jesus had appeared twice to His disciples. Now He appears to them again on the beach at the Sea of Tiberias (or Galilee). It happened as Nathaniel, the two sons of Zebedee, and two other disciples, were together. Peter said he was going fishing, and so all said they would go too. They boarded a small fishing ship and fished all night, without catching a fish.

When morning came they were near the shore and saw a man on the beach. It was Jesus Christ, but they knew Him not. He called to them, "Children, have ye any meat?" or as we would say, "Have you caught anything?" They answered, "No."

"And He said unto them, Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes."

John, the beloved disciple, first recognized Jesus and said to Peter, "It is the Lord." When Simon Peter heard this he threw himself into the sea, presumably to swim or wade ashore to meet the Master. The others came in the little ship dragging the net with the fishes.

When they came to land they saw there was a fire on the beach and fish laid thereon, and bread. Jesus told them to bring the fish they had caught. Peter drew the net to land full of "great fishes," 153 of them, but even with so many the net had not broken.

Jesus said to them, "Come and do likewise!"

John, in his first epistle, also pleads with his fellow Christians in Colosse, a great city in the province of Asia, and he urges them to live in love with one another while still on the earth.

"Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought to love one another. No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and His love is perfected in us."

These early Christians, those who had known Jesus when He was on earth, and those who followed shortly after, had the spirit of the Risen Lord in their hearts and in their lives. "Go thou, and do likewise!"

EASTER DAWN

EASTER is the pinnacle of faith for all those who call themselves members of Christendom. It is the fountainhead of hope for those who pursue the vision that first was shown them by the Christ.

It is a vision for today—a vision of brotherhood and understanding and peace among the peoples of the earth. In the day in which the Carpenter of Nazareth spoke of this vision it was just as daring as it seems today. Sometimes it seems as if we were now no nearer to that era of brotherhood than on the day when Jesus was crucified. But we are not further away.

On Easter morning in the far corners of the earth men and women and wide-eyed children lift their faces to acknowledge the reality of the great vision.

The day of brotherhood will yet dawn upon the earth. They will make it dawn—they who in hushed cathedrals and on barren hillside this Easter morning lift their hearts to Heaven.

They also work to make it dawn who do not call themselves religious, but who nevertheless see God and the Vision in the awakening of Spring on the earth.

"For Winter's rains and ruins are over,

And all the season of snows and sins;
And in green underwood and cover
Blossom by blossom the Spring begins."

Then, indeed, the miracle of resurrection, of renewal of life, of the new hope and another opportunity is made manifest. In the light of the Easter miracle, all things become possible. The day of brotherhood will yet dawn.

BASE SLANDER

A HOLLYWOOD interview with Ruth Parker, self-styled "contourist" who makes a living slimming down the movie colony, make plain that she blames American wives for the fact that, on the average, women live longer than men.

Miss Parker claims that the women put out wonderful meals, delicious to eat, packed with calories. But do the cooks do this with the idea of keeping their husbands happy? That is merely a side-issue, she says. She asserts that the purpose of all this loving labor is to make the husbands unattractively overweight, thus reducing the likelihood of their wandering.

We hope the girls will not take this lying down. Most well-fed husbands are too happy about the whole thing to dream of impugning ulterior motives to the producers of the mouth-watering meals which make them hurry home every night. They are sure the little woman has their best interests at heart. She would show equally conscientious zeal in the other direction if for any reason they evinced a desire to take off a few pounds.

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Another day of rain. Sandwiching in about like the moist ones of last Spring. Learned that the weatherman had changed his mind about fair skies for Easter and was mighty discouraging to the fair sex with new outfits. Soon away and to the post where did pick up a card from Joe Burns, who thinks the weather ideal in the nation's capital, and a letter from Meeker Terwilliger, who thinks about the same thing regarding Florida, but who already is heading home for the Summer. Hereabouts others already planning hot-season vacations.

Plenty of talk about Memorial lake and practically all of it optimistic. Everyone seems to think that the lake practically is here, forgetting that only $34,500 in actual cash is available and that the remaining $210,000 is in election year promises. Don't cut bait for use out there for a while yet. The $34,500 is from the $150,000 appropriated by the legislature. The conservation commission has certified a $90,000 promise to the board of control and that board has promised that the first $90,000 that accumulates to the credit of the conservation department, will be released, along with the remainder of the legislature's fund, for the building of the lake. The Conservation Commission should have collected much more than $90,000 from fishing and hunting licenses long before election time. Maybe an unfortunate situation from the viewpoint of politicians. Anyway, we will see.

Congratulations to Buggs and his bluecoats for their enforcement of the parking meter regulation. One now may find a downtown parking space instead of a half hundred or more cars occupying space without pay. An advantage to everyone.

Note to Walter Brehm: A lot of folk hereabouts are wondering just why we continue exports to Russia including material regarded as vital to our own army in wartime. Some of us, not being diplomats or too familiar with the international situation, remember how Japan returned our scrap iron. And as for the men who were permitted to sell airplane engines to the Reds we are practically unanimous in the hope that if the engines ever are used against us that the first bombs fall right in the hip pockets of the men who made the sales and those who put the stamp of approval on the deals. What's it all about, Walter?

Down past the GE plant and noted roof steel being unloaded, and work going right ahead in a sea of mud. Chatted with Cecil Noecker and learned about the new rifle he has acquired along with the guarantee that he can and will outshoot the scrivener this Summer. Could be.

Lived up Lima way quite a few years, but had to come down here to learn an interesting fact about Wapakoneta, the Auglaize county-seat. The statue of Justice on the courthouse faces north. All others face the rising sun. Long years ago Wapakoneta won over St. Marys in a fight for the county seat. St. Marys is west of Wapakoneta and when the courthouse was built the town's entire population rose and declared that while Justice had turned her back on the village they refused to permit a monument to their defeat. So, Justice faces north on the Auglaize courthouse.

Heard about a dog in Kings-ton that barks only at Chevrolet, any model. Bud Harden is skeptical and so is the scrivener. But I do know I drove through the town and not a single dog barked at my car.

These Days

In Italy, the Communist party supports religion. Italy is peculiarly a Roman Catholic country in the sense that practically all Italians regard themselves as Catholics, even the atheists. In such a country, religion is the national philosophy of life, the central social relationship. It is a civilization. Italians who never set foot in a church are Catholics because without it their way of life would lack meaning. That is admittedly difficult for Americans to understand; here it was possible for the Supreme Court to outlaw religion—and all religion—to make atheism a way of life.

So, whereas the whole of Marxian philosophy is based upon a biologic conception of life which rejects God and the supernatural, in Italy, the same party, the same individuals support religion, encourage church marriages, baptisms, confirmations. By this device they encourage the Italians to believe that their Communists are simply politicians vying for power; that they do not have a philosophy of life which is utterly different from the Christian philosophy of life. It is a wonderful device.

Of course, the Communists attack the Vatican and the Catholic clergy, but not the religion that they represent. This is clever, too. For by not attacking the religion but only the clergy, they seek to separate the people from their intellectual leaders who happen to be the clergy, just as in Rumania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, they killed or exiled professors of the universities, school-teachers, middle-class leaders. In Poland, they killed most of them. Many in Hungary were exiled to Yakutsk. It is a technique of confusion designed to leave the people almost helpless. For in many countries in Europe, particularly in those where literacy is not too high, the intellectual plays an extraordinarily important role of leadership. By killing off or exiling the anti-Communist intellectuals, the Russians open the door for their stooges to act as substitutes.

And now, they have started a new campaign. The Italians are naturally proud of the fact that for over four centuries every Pope has been an Italian. Now the Communists in Italy are telling the people that the next Pope is to be an American. There are three of them, Cardinals St. John, Mooney and Spellman, who are being advertised as prospects for the Papal succession. Behind that is the scare that "American Imperialism" will force an American Pope on the Italian people. A clever device.

In a word, not only is "American imperialism" a dollar control of a country, according to the Communists, but in Italy, it takes on a special form of also controlling the Vatican. This is an example of the way this party operates on a universal scale. In each country it employs whatever techniques serve for the moment. It does not matter whether there is the slightest truth in what they say. Does the truth matter? Does anything matter but the end to be achieved? For that end, they will lie; they will even kill. It is what the Communists regard as the "inevitable" end, for which all things may be done.

Maybe the trouble with Russia is simply that she doesn't know there is anything wrong with her. Give her time to wake up.

A Type of Cancer That The Doctor Can Easily Diagnose

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
CANCER of the lower bowel is one of the simplest of all cancers to diagnose. Where it is suspected, the physician can tell with surety, even in the very early, curable stages, whether it is present or not—and that by a fairly simple examination.

Unfortunately, however, most victims of this type of cancer do not give their doctors a chance to help them. They ignore their symptoms as long as they can be ignored and present themselves for examination only after the cancer is far advanced.

Sad Fact
This sad fact accounts for an even sadder one—that one-fifth of our annual cancer deaths are due to cancer of the lower bowel. This condition is twice as frequent in men as in women. Most of the patients are between fifty and seventy years of age. However, from one to five of every hundred of those affected are below the age of thirty.

There are certain disorders which evidently contribute to the development of such bowel cancers. These are tumor growths known as polyps and adenomas. The occurrence of such polyps is quite common. Inflammation of the bowel, piles, and cracking around the opening of the bowel are not particularly important as contributing causes to the development of cancer.

Certain Symptoms
The symptoms which suggest the possibility of cancer of the bowel are bleeding from the rectum, changes in bowel habits, such as the occurrence of constipation in a person who formerly did not have such a condition, and the development of rectal pain.

When any of these symptoms is present, an immediate examination by the physician should be made. This examination should include the use of the proctoscope. This is an instrument made up of a tube and a light, which can be passed directly into the bowel. In this way it is possible for the physician to examine directly the lining membrane of the bowel to determine whether or not a growth is present. Practically all cancers of the lower bowel can be seen with the proctoscope.

Early Diagnosis
Early diagnosis of cancer, or the discovery of polyps which can be removed before they become cancerous, becomes all important if deaths from rectal cancers are to be reduced.

The blood in rectal cancer is usually bright red and either streaks the bowel movement or is mixed with it. Large hemorrhages do not occur, except in rare instances. Unfortunately, pain is a late sign and, by the time it develops, the growth may have become quite large.

X-ray examination is, as a rule, not of any great help in the diagnosis of early cases of rectal cancer. Of course, when a growth is discovered, it should be promptly removed by surgical operation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. R. R.: What causes a person to lose control of his kidneys?

A. Answer: There is no such thing as a loss of control of the kidneys. It is loss of bladder control which leads to difficulty. This, in turn, usually results from some disturbance of the nervous system. However, it may also be due to malposition of the bladder.

A thorough study by a physician is needed to find the cause before treatment can be advised.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT
MIKE continued. "John Bennett said that your mother and father were charming, lovable people. Kit, I wasn't surprised to hear that your mother was beautiful and talented and your father an able and respected man. Kit, your father took money from his employer to save his brother's business. The brother was in South America and in some kind of financial jam and your father thought, according to John Bennett, that he could make the money good. He was caught but not before the brother in South America was back on his feet and ready to do anything to help your father out. But it was too late then. It seems there'd been some jealousy between your father and his partner. The partner wanted to see your father pay the hard way... Isn't that all you wanted to know—that they were people you couldn't be ashamed of? It's a tragic story, Kit, but it occurred to me they'd want you to live the life they missed because of that one false step. You're both of them, you know. It's because your father didn't want this hanging over your head that he never saw you again and wouldn't permit his family to interfere with your aunt's bringing you up. This can't touch you very deeply, Kit. You don't remember them. All you can do is think of them as two people who had a lot while the going was good and one mistake brought the end..."

Kit's clear eyes were misty. "That's all I wanted to know, Mike. Thank you. I feel a lot better about it. I know the 'why.' And it is futile for me to cry over what they missed. I suppose..." "Two people who have had each other and a child and been happy haven't missed much. You have a lot of well-to-do relatives, by the way, scattered over the world. You didn't know that, did you? The younger brother, your father's brother, is a sort of tycoon in South America. Your father never wanted for anything when he was free."

"I'm glad of that. But I don't particularly care about the well-to-do relatives." She smiled. "But perhaps if I told Mrs. Merryman about them, she wouldn't treat me as if I were the little girl who wasn't there."

Mike chuckled. Then, "You haven't anything to be ashamed of. Your father made a mistake and paid for it. That's a lot more than most of us do. You know? What we need is a big drink. How about it?"

"Fine. I must write Aunt Chris. She never knew the full story either. You were right, Mike. I can't go around with a chip on my shoulder. The debt was paid the hard way."

"The slate is clean. Now let's eat!" They came out into the warm night burdened by thousands of bright lights. Lights, Kit thought! Not the darkness but lights that would never go out for her again. She winced when she remembered what she had said to Kirk... "Do you want to kiss me now?" Like an hysterical schoolgirl, not like the daughter of a man who had made a mistake and paid for it.

Walking beside Mike she asked with a guilty little smile, "Am I so ungrateful, Mike?" He frowned. His eyes were amused. "That sounds like Tracy. A few years ago she was always wondering whether or not she was grown-up. No, you're not quite Kit. At least you weren't until tonight. How could you be when your life has been smooth and pleasant until recently? You've never had a bad knock before. Bad knocks shake you out of adolescence. You have to defend your self. You're on your own..."

She thought, Mike and I get along well. But when I'm with Kirk the sparks fly... We leave things unsaid and undone. Could Mike explain that?

But Mike was saying, "You're the first person I've told about the short story. I thought I'd burst if I didn't tell somebody. I felt like crying but all I can really think of is, 'It can be done. It can be done.' Kit, I'm taking you to a place where the steaks are thick and the music good. I even want to dance..." And when they were sitting at a table in a crowded but cool restaurant, he said, "You're sweet to listen to all this prattle about me. It's a long story. Only I can fully enjoy the triumph I feel pious and reformed." He was telling the truth, he thought. It was swell to tell the truth and not to live with his tongue in his cheek, belittling, arguing, criticizing. And he felt humble, too. Never in his life had he felt so humble as when he had held in his hand the check for five hundred dollars. "I'm going to move, Kit. I may ask you to help me fix up the new place." A cheerful apartment, he thought, and a desk rather than a card table on which to write. And maybe a small place in the country where he had made enough to quit his job and devote himself exclusively to writing. And then—a wife? He grinned. "The winner of the Irish sweepstakes couldn't feel as good as I feel tonight. I told you I even wanted to dance. Let's dance."

He liked to dance with Kit. He liked to laugh with her. He liked to look at her and talk to her.

His first jobs were as newspaper reporter and editor in Albuquerque, N. M., from 1918-22. He then became manager of an insurance agency. Next, Anderson owned his own insurance agency in Albuquerque. He has served in many official positions in New Mexico, was treasurer of state from 1933-4. Oscar Greeley Clendenning Hammerstein (Oscar II), lyric writer and producer of musical comedies, received no encouragement to go into show business. His father, Oscar I, had lost fortunes trying to produce operas and he had no mind that his son should follow in his steps. At Columbia university Oscar II wrote variety shows. He had the promise of a law job after graduation but was only offered $15 a week salary. If they had given him a bit more he would have accepted, but as it was he went to his uncle, Arthur Hammerstein, and asked for a job in the theater. He was made assistant stage manager at $20 a week. He kept the job for one year and then began to write plays. His first, "The Light," was a failure; his second, "Tickle Me," a success. He had successes in "Wildflower" and "Rose Marie," both collaborations. With "Oklahoma," another collaboration, Oscar was in! "Annie Get Your Gun," "Happy Birthday," "John Loves Mary" and "Allegro" followed.

Traditional Easter Egg Hunt Enjoyed By 90 Children

Ted Lewis Park
Site Of Search

Rain did not dampen the spirit of 90 children of First Evangelical United Brethren church who enjoyed their annual Good Friday afternoon Easter egg hunt sponsored by the Sunday school.

The group met in the community house at 4 p. m. and were then transported to Ted Lewis park where approximately thirty dozen gayly colored and decorated Easter eggs were concealed in the grass. Three groups were formed to care for the beginners, primary and junior age children. At the signal, each group began an enthusiastic search for the coveted eggs with the teachers keeping careful score to determine which child of each age group found the most. When all eggs were accounted for it was discovered that George D. Kerr was the winner in the junior group. Roger Leist was acclaimed winner in the primary section. Garry Agin came out on top in the beginner department. Each was awarded a gift for his accomplishment.

Rain forced the group to return to the community house where games and contests were enjoyed by each section. Awards for contests went to May Elizabeth Martin, George D. Kerr and Kathleen Hare.

Devotions were in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson. Group singing closed the devotional period.

Refreshments were served by the committee. Climaxing the evening's activity, each child received an equal share of the colored eggs before starting for home.

Grangers Hold Safety Program

Members of Washington Grange decided to sponsor a three-act play in the near future during their meeting Friday evening in Washington school building. Loring Leist, master, was in the chair for a short business session.

A program pertaining to safety was presented. A reading entitled "Famous Last Words" was given by Mrs. Willis Dunkle and another "Some People Are Just Lucky" was given by Mrs. Mae Groce. Betty Lou Leist sang a solo accompanied by her sister, Weta Mae Leist, at the piano. William Ruch Richter read a poem.

Two motion pictures, "My Model Home" and "Tree To Home" were shown. The program was arranged by Mrs. Arthur Leist, lecturer of the Grange.

New Cotton Tweeds

No one needs to be told that good cottons have a place in the sun. But it's really news when you can toss vacation cottons into a suitcase, unpack them on arrival and fairly watch them shed any wrinkles acquired on the way.

We have no geni to thank for this miracle. Responsible are a group of hard-working chemists who came up after years of experimentation with a process for making crisp, wrinkle resistant cotton tweed. Here are clothes for sun, fun and stars, all tubbable as well as packable for the cotton tweed is vat-dyed and pre-shrunk, too.

The plaids come in colors to match every mood. There are misty tones of blue, beige and brown to be combined with a solid beige in the tweed. Fresh yellow, green and lavender plaid as a matching green in the plain. And bold blues and red combine with blue like tropical skies.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

New Gooseberry Easy to Pick

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association
IF YOU have a spot in your garden that is in partial shade and you have had trouble growing things there, use it for gooseberries.

They are hardy and easy to grow but do best in rich, well drained soil. Annual pruning is necessary to maintain the quality of the fruit.

Those who find berry picking an arduous chore will want to try the new gooseberry originated at the North Dakota Experiment Station. It is called Pixwell because, as its name implies, it "picks well."

The berries hang on long, slender stems below the branches, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This plus the fact that the canes have few thorns, make picking quick and easy.

The berries are large, oval, an attractive light green color when immature, ripening to pink. The bush is a vigorous grower and bears heavy crops. Its foliage colors up to be an attractive ornamental bush.

Home gardeners will also find another variety, the Houghton, sweet enough to eat fresh without first turning the fruit into preserves or cooking it for dessert.

The spreading bushes require six feet of space, but since each bears prolifically, only three to six need be grown for the average family.

Gooseberry canes are sometimes subject to the fungus disease known as anthracnose. Its appearance on the canes is illustrated. To control it apply sulphur (2 to 50) before the buds swell in the spring. Be sure to cut out and burn all diseased canes.

A delicious sauce for cooked, canned or frozen asparagus may be made by adding 1/4 cup milk and 3 tablespoons of butter or margarine to 1 can of condensed mushroom soup.

To top your cake with something new, melt a couple of candy bars over hot water, adding a few spoonfuls of coffee cream to thin for easy spreading.

HE'S UNLIKE WAGNER

If 'Mr. Shortstop' Fails, Count Cards Out Of Race

NEW YORK, March 27—If the injured Marty Marion is lost for the 1948 baseball season or any appreciable part thereof, you can throw the St. Louis Cardinals out as hot contenders for the National League pennant.

It is doubtful that Marion ever was as good as his fond admirers insisted, but he was just about the best shortstop of these times for 10 years or so.

Marion's knee buckled under him in an exhibition game yesterday—the same knee which he hurt last season and there now is some question as to how long he will be out.

He never was a terrific hitter, but the "octopus" got his tentacles on everything hit toward his side of the infield.

MARION is a tall lanky, nervous sort of guy who picks up pebbles while waiting for his pitcher to throw to the hitter, and he stamps around here and there hitching up his pants and going through all manner of motions.

Then when the hitter hits the ball—if it is somewhere between second and third, Marion generally has been in front of it.

Marion has been so good a fielder that veteran baseball men—some of the smartest of them—have always insisted that he could do things even Honus Wagner couldn't do.

The two men are or were totally unlike. Wagner was a lumbering fellow with big bowed legs and deceptive speed. He has great hands like shovels.

Marion is a stringbean, a loose-jointed slight fellow with an uncanny knack of being where the ball would be hit, a good arm, and a sureness that was amazing.

PERHAPS if he had been a really great hitter everybody would have agreed that he was better than even Wagner, supposedly the all-time peer of all shortstops by virtue of the things he did in the old days for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Marion can't go on much longer, bad knee or otherwise. He has just about run out his string, but Manager Eddie Dyer has been depending upon him to go hustling along another season or two.

Without him, no telling where the Cards will finish. The team is on the old side, frayed around the seams and very close to being worn out by old age.

4 More New Rules Proposed
NEW YORK, March 27—For the second time in as many days, four more rules changes were adopted today by the National Basketball Committee.

They are:
1. The period for which the time clock is to be stopped on dead balls is reduced from

Play Bridge With BARCLAY

RISKING GAME JUSTIFIED
In order to seek an extra trick is never justified in rubber bridge. But in match-point duplicate, played in all pair tournaments, there are well defined situations in which doing that is obligatory on the fine player. Suppose, when he sees the dummy, he realizes that most pairs will be in a better contract than he, but also that some pairs will share the same as he. If he reckons his pair to that stage had a fine score and might win if it gets anything better than a tie with others in the same contract, then he should strive to do better than the tyers.

Wife Preservers

NOAH NUMSKULL

Instantly after his bid of 5-Diamonds, South realized he had been ultra-conservative and that other players in his position would bid 6-Diamonds at some tables. He felt all the more regretful when he saw the dummy, bemoaning his own choice of three options. The third would have been to double the 4-Hearts, which now seemed likely to be set about three tricks, for more than the value of his own mere game.

Apparently sure to be beaten by the pairs in the small slam, if it could be made, and also by those who doubled the hearts, his sole chance to improve his score by play was to beat some of the people who were in 5-Diamonds and might play safe for the contract. Feeling that this might eke out just enough match points on the deal to prevent defeat, he decided to risk his contract for the extra trick.

The heart 9 was the lead, which the J covered and the K won. East made the most damaging return of the club J, the A winning. That lead located the K-Q with West, hence South figured East almost sure to have had the spade Q for his opening bid. So he took in the diamond K and Q, scored the spade A, led to the diamond A, finessed the spade J and was thrilled when it won. Its failure would have meant a club return, setting him. Using spades to discard dummy's clubs, then ruffing the club 8, brought in his extra trick and enabled his pair to win the tournament by one match point, as two other pairs refused to finesse in spades.

Guy Kibbee, grand old man of the stage and screen, will play "Twenty Questions" with the regular panel on that program's Mutual broadcast Saturday at 8 p. m.

Other participants for the "animal, mineral or vegetable" game include Fred Vandeventer, Florence Rinard, Herb Pole-sie and Bobby McGuire.

Senator Claghorn, of Allen's Alley, says that he isn't the least bit worried about the new wave of strikes among miners.

"As he sees it, 'the minute the miners come up out of the ground and see the mess the world is in—they'll be glad to get back down in the mines again.'"

Charlie McCarthy will welcome one of the country's finest young pianists, Diana Lynn, to his Sunday evening show at 8:00 p. m. over WLW.

The remainder of the cast of the half-hour comedy program will be Mortimer Snerd, songstress Anita Gordon, Pat Patrick and Ray Noble and his orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mason will interrupt their packing for their first trip to Hollywood long enough to come over and say goodbye to Fred Allen on Sunday at 8:30 p. m. over NBC.

Portland Hoffa and Allen's Alley regulars Kenny Delmar, Tully Moody, Mrs. Nussbaum, Ajax Cassidy, plus the Five Singing DeMarco Sisters and Al Goodman and his orchestra will round out the cast.

An exciting story of modern pirates, who operate on the high-seas instead of on the high seas, and of a rat pack that saved the life of "Nick Carter, Master Detective," will be heard during the "Case of the Martyred Rat" over Mutual Sunday at 4 p. m.

It's a human rat, however, who locks Nick and his secretary Patsy in a brewery basement to die of starvation.

William Powell and Ann Sothern will play the leading roles in the Lux Radio Theatre's version of the domestic comedy, "I Love

You Again." Monday at 9:00 p. m. over CBS.

Farm Bureau Meet To Discuss $40,000 Service Center

Offices, Repair Shop To Be Built

Parley Booked For Monday

A proposed $40,000 Service Center will be under discussion Monday night when members of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau Cooperative, Inc., hold their second annual meeting at 8 p. m. in Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Plans, still in the blueprint stage, call for a cement block building 50 feet by 100 feet to be built on West Mound street. One-half of the structure will be used for repair work on farm machinery and the other half will contain modern offices and display space.

During the regular business meeting, three directors for the bureau will be elected and patronage refunds in cash as well as dividend payments will be made to patrons of the cooperative.

Franklin T. Riddle, co-op secretary, outlined the Farm Bureau's business volume for the last three years.

IN 1945, he said business reached $50,000 with savings to patrons totaling $2,800; for 1946 sales increased to $72,000 with $5,700 set aside as member savings; last year business amounted to $104,000 with savings set at $9,900, Riddle disclosed.

In a brief history of the Farm Bureau, the secretary said the cooperative was first organized in 1944 and opened for business Jan. 1, 1945.

Even though the garage at the rear of the Farm Bureau home was not desirable from the standpoint of patron convenience and service, the record of the last three years has shown a steady growth.

There are, at present, approximately 650 member-owners of common stock, Riddle declared. J. Arnold Burkhardt, co-op manager from Carroll County will be guest speaker at Monday night's meeting. He is expected to report on cooperative achievements in his county.

Riddle pointed out that any patron of the Pickaway Co-op is a member and therefore eligible to attend the meeting.

Ice cream will be served to all in attendance and moving pictures will be shown.

Conservation Expert Says Bees Help Farmers Check Soil Erosion

"Busy as a bee" is a phrase that can be taken literally when describing the job of the little worker as he buzzes around the nectar pots to make honey and thus help farmers check soil erosion.

John G. Boggs, chairman of the Pickaway Agriculture Conservation Program Committee, said experts have estimated the honey bee makes 160,000 trips to blossoms of legumes to gather enough nectar to grind into a pound of honey.

In recent years, the bee has become recognized as an important aid to soil conservation in this country, Boggs declared.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates there will be an increase of four percent in the shipments of package bees over the 1,375,000 pounds shipped last year. Reports from Texas indicate the demand for queens is considerably heavier than last year when 1,007,000 queens were shipped.

AS FOR SOIL conservation, Boggs explained, it is the legumes such as red clover, alfalfa, lespediza, vetches and others that add great quantities of organic matter and nitrogen to the soils.

It is the result of a chain reaction in these legumes that helps resist erosion. The chain works this way:

The nitrogen increases crops, particularly grasses in pastures and meadows. Grasses improve the tilth of soil; and soils in good tilth resist erosion.

Where does the bee come in? Well, on those some 160,000 trips to the various blossoms to gather nectar they help pollination which leads to the production of legume seeds.

72,000 Persons Lose Rides In Railway Strike

CHICAGO, March 27—Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Railway workers struck today for higher wages and left 72,000 commuters in 18 Chicago suburbs without their normal means of transportation.

A four and a half hour meeting, attended by some 200 company, union and commuter representatives at Waukegan, failed to halt the walkout.

North Shore President Bernard J. Fallon declared no effort would be made to operate the Chicago-to-Milwaukee system and its affiliated bus lines. He said the road would cease its operations completely.

Fallon rejected all suggestions made by the union and the commuters for keeping the system in operation. He said the company had operated at a $95,000 deficit in 1947 and was incapable of paying a 15-1/2 cents hourly wage increase suggested by the federal railway mediation board.

The workers, members of Division 900 of the AFL-Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Operators, originally had sought a 20-cent increase from their current hourly rate of $1.12-1/2.

The scholarship will pay fees, travel expenses and $25 a month at any college or university of his choice.

Wallace Hits Top Leaders

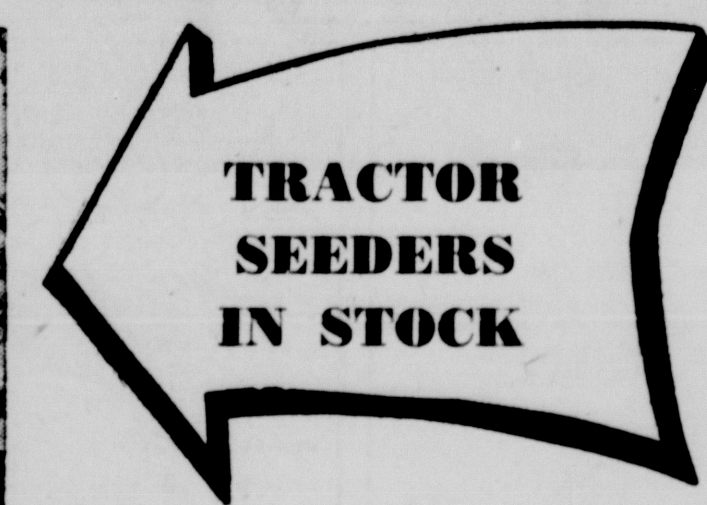

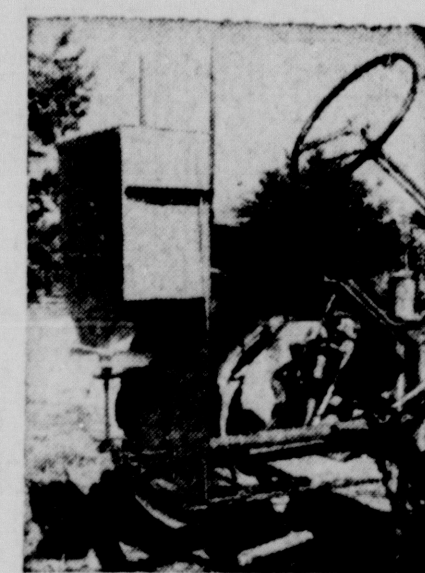

NEW YORK, March 27—President Truman, Senator Arthur Vandenberg, and Winston Churchill, were depicted today by Henry Wallace as "strengthening Communism."

The third party presidential candidate, speaking over nationwide radio hookup last night accused the British statesman's "iron curtain" speech and the Truman doctrine of "producing a war virus."

Wallace asserted: "Our diplomacy has been debauched, our standards of international morality lowered, and sensible public discussion inside the United States is made more and more difficult."
